

MSP1105 – Social Ethics (seminar)
Academic year of 2024/'25, autumn semester
Topics and Requirements

Topics:

The aim of the course is to make the students familiar with the basic concepts and tendencies of ethics; systematically and historically. The course offers a support for the students to develop their skills of argumentation and demonstration in moral philosophy, and in the question of the philosophical foundations of the ethics.

Key topics:

Who is a person? What are the basic concepts of morality, the problems of virtues and moral values? The typology of ethical systems and modes of ethical reasoning. The main nodes in the history of ethics in European thought. Practical issues of morality, moral aspects of borderline situations (euthanasia, abortion, deviance).

Participation in the workshops:

Participation in the workshops is compulsory. The maximum number of absences per semester is three times the number of contact hours per week in full-time courses. If this is exceeded, the semester cannot be assessed (TVSz 8.§ 1.)

Requirement: Essay. The essay must meet the basic requirements of a scholarly work (independent collection of material, research, appropriate reference apparatus, citation of the literature used). Length: minimum eight pages, excluding title page, table of contents, bibliography, images used.
